A GRAVE SITUATION.

There was not a man at work to-day, in or about the great steel works except the watchmen. A party of fifty-seven non-union men halling from Phil-adelphia, Boston and New York, are at Greensburg to-night and will go to the works in the morning. Serious trouble is apprehended when they arrive. The Sheriff expects to have a posse of 500 on hand te-morny. At Il clock a nomihand to-morrow. At 11 o'clock an omi-nous quiet prevailed. The streets were nous quiet prevailed. The streets were comparatively quiet, but the strikers are so well organized that by a whistle from one of the scouts, a thousand to fifteen hundred men can be called together in a few minutes. The men employed at the other mills controlled by Carnegie are considering the advisability of quit-ting work if the strike is not settled. A meeting of the men at the Twentzwinth meeting of the men at the Twenty-ninth and Thirty-second street mills will be held to-morrow night to take some action looking to that end. This would in-crease the number of strikers soveral thousand.

tion of the sitting of the Parnell com nission to-day, Sir Charles Russell, of Council for the Parnellites, asked Mr. Soames, the solicitor for the Times to produce a list of the payments he had made to witnesses in behalf of the Times and all the communications that had passed between himself and the Times agents in America and Ireland.

Attorney General Webster declined to allow Mr. Soames to produce the com munication. Mr. Soames was then re called. He testified that he had not made out a list of the witnesses. He could not tell when he had first corres onded with LeCaron. There was no definite arrangement as to how witness should pay him. Already several payments had been made to him. Mr. Mac Donald manager of the Times said it was understood that LeCaron would be pro-vided for. He had lost his employment

The Republican platform says on the liquor question that the party will go as far as public sentiment will sustain it in legislation on the regulation of liquor seiling. The idea, "High taxation of saloons, low taxation of homes," appears to be on the gain. When the Republican party will make the general tax $1,000 or $1,500 a year on saloons it will be getting somewhere near the right spot. Ohe should be as far advanced as Missouri is in saloon regulation, but she is yet considerably behind.
